Editorial Table.

History of the United States Cavalry, From the year 1863. To the present. By Col. Albert G. Brackett. Illustrated. New York: Harper & Brothers, 1865. Pp. 331.

The author of this volume is a thorough cavalry soldier. From the position of Major of the 1st U. S. Regular Cavalry, he succeeded to the Colonelcy of the 9th Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, was promoted to Chief of Cavalry of the Department of Missouri, and afterwards inspector of cavalry of the Department of the Cumberland. This work was written, mainly, while the author was engaged in active campaigns before Atlanta and other positions, and is alike creditable to his industry and his knowledge of the subject upon which it treats, as there were few opportunities of consulting authorities so brief, as this.

Although it is in many particulars too dated, in the mention of particular events, to do the subject proper justice, and although showing evidence of haste and incompleteness in its preparation, it forms, nevertheless, a volume long needed to complete the record of the various branches of the military service of our country, and as such will find many readers. For sale in this city by C. A. Pierce, Water street.

MAGAZINES FOR THE LADIES. October is heralded by the arrival of the magazines for the month, prominent among which are those devoted especially to the instruction and amusement of the ladies. Godey's has for an engraving five portraits from the cartoons of Raffaele de Sanzio, illustrating events in the lives of the Apostles, and is one of the best of the kind that has appeared in this work for a long time. It contains a fine tribute to the memory of the American poet, Mr. Signory. Arthur's American Magazine contains a continuation of Virginia F. Tupper's story, "Whether it Paid," and other interesting matter. Peterson's National and the Lady's Friend are, as usual, full of interesting and attractive matter. Copies of either can be had at the counter of Charles A. Pierce at Pierce's Crockery Warehouse, north of Bridge street.

"THE ROUND TABLE." All acquainted with this able and original literary weekly, which was discontinued a little more than a year ago since the outbreak of the severity of the times, will be glad to know that its publication has been again commenced under the direction of its former conductors. During the time of its publication it won for itself a high position for independence of criticism, vigor of thought and breadth of discussion; and we are sure it will now maintain for itself the character it has acquired. The editors and contributors are among the ablest writers of the day, and the candid and elevated tone of the paper, its varied contents, and especially its literary criticisms, are an honor to American journalism. Terms, $3.00 per annum. Address "The Round Table," New York City.

HARVEST MAGAZINE. The October number contains the following illustrated articles:—A Down in the Canine Mines; Visit to the Parthenon; Sherman's Great March; and the continuation of "Our Mutual Friend" and "Armada." The other articles are: One of my scholars; In the Storage; Ode; Seeing Naples; Jefferson Davis; On the Shore; The Raising of the Frigate; Fighting Joe Hooker; A Battle Royal; Give them Work; besides the usual editorial departments. The article on Jeff. Davis will be found curious as having been written by a southern officer, formerly Gen. Beauregard's Chief of Staff. Address Harper & Brothers, New York City. Sold in this city by C. A. Pierce.

ARREST OF AN INCENDIARY IN PORTLAND. Several incendiary fires occurred in Portland on Wednesday morning last, resulting in a serious destruction of property. The Press says: The incendiary was seen when lighting his pile of shavings, by a woman, who, though she did not know the man, gave such an accurate description of him, that he was identified as one with whom Mr. Williams has had some trouble. Search was made for him, and as he could not be found in the city, policemen were dispatched in the train over the various routes from the city. Deputy Marshal Westcott took him to Kennebec train, and at Yarmouth, found his man. It was George W. Jones, formerly of China, who has been engaged in peddling fish and lobsters. He was taken to the station, and the train for the East as it came along. He was armed with two heavy army revolvers, six-shooters, every barrel being heavily loaded, and the pistols being kept in his waist. He was secured and brought to this city.

After being taken to the lock-up, he was confessed to the City Marshal that he set both fires, the one on Franklin street, the one on Federal street, and the other on the train for the East. Williams having refused to settle with him, as he desired, for damage to his wagon. He shows no penitence for the offense, and will have to serve the State a long term of imprisonment.

It is supposed that he is the one who set the fire at Augusta on Sunday. He was there, and had, as we are informed, some difficulty with whom Mr. Williams has had some trouble. He was taken to the station, and the train for the East as it came along. He was armed with two heavy army revolvers, six-shooters, every barrel being heavily loaded, and the pistols being kept in his waist. He was secured and brought to this city.

SHIPWRECK AND LOSS OF LIFE. The brig Comantha Hopkins of Eden, Capt. Warren B. Hamor, from Philadelphia for Boston with a cargo of coal, was driven ashore about two miles south of Highland Light, Cape Cod, at 3 1/2 A. M., 18th inst., during the heavy gale from E. N. E. At 4 o'clock A. M., the vessel began to leak, and commenced breaking up, and at 7 A. M. had gone entirely to pieces. Soon after she commenced breaking up, Capt. Hamor directed himself of most of his clothing, jumped overboard and swam ashore, but could not induce the crew to make the attempt. Soon after he left the mate jumped overboard, but was drowned along side. The remaining men, five in number, went on to the job-boom, but when she broke up, were all drowned. When the vessel was broken up, the crew were all drowned. The mate was drowned. The crew were all drowned. The mate was drowned. The crew were all drowned.
